Hull lived at the time of the Civil War. She made it her mission early in the war to collect the stories of young soldiers for a planned anthology of their stories to be gathered together later. It's a fascinating collection of accounts from all over the war. This is one of the most unique, from a letter written after the war: "My brother Briscoe was with us, not quite fifteen. At Brandy Station he got several sabre wounds, and was a prisoner at Old Capitol. Afterward I was the youngest officer in the Fifty-Second Infantry, and the youngest man except one -- our little blind drummer, Maurice. When Milroy attacked our camp on the Allegheny, at dawn of December 13, I pulled Maurice out of his bunk and made him beat the long roll down the street of the camp, before making his toilet, and I can almost hear him swearing yet." I highly recommend this outstanding collection of stories about the Confederate boys in the war. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. VMI Battle of New Market section a pleasant surprise By Gypsy Has a whole section on the Battle of New Market!! Didn't know it until I bought it.

Published in 1905, this is a collection of over 100 brief true stories of the heroics and deaths of boys and young men serving the Confederate States of America during the Civil War. Includes Sam Davis, Gettysburg, Randolph Fairfax, unknowns and more.
