Nick Flores : Confess, Confess, Confess: The True Story of a Prisoner of War before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Confess, Confess, Confess: The True Story of a Prisoner of War:

This is the story of Nick A. Flores who was captured during the first battle at Hell Fire Valley, a few miles from Chosin Reservoir. He served 36 months as a POW at Camp One in Chong-sung, Korea. While a POW, Nick nursed nineteen POWs, brought in by the North Korean Army, and saved thirteen by spoon-feeding, bathing, listening and comforting them -- a task that no one else wanted or would do. He gave his food to fellow POWs and hand made moccasins for those soldiers with frost bitten feet. During repatriation at Freedom Village, General McCall Pate, commander of the 1st Marine Division, was so impressed by words spoken about Nick that he summoned Nick over to sit next to him. It was at this time General Pate told Nick, "I know that our country will give you the highest honor that you could receive for your heroism while a POW". After returning home, Nick began yet another battle that lasted for forty years. He was driven with determination to write a book about his life, events and often times painful memories he endured while in the hands of the Chinese Peoples' Army and his homeland tragedies.

"I could not put book down. How he survived all that he did is truly exceptional. Excellent reading." -- Goldia, IN, 2003
"Thank you for your service as well and as a POW survivor of the Korean War. I salute you Sir!" -- Major J. Decker USAF, 2003
The book will leave you wondering if his captors had more respect for Nick Flores than his own country. -- Frank McCluen, Nevada, 2004
About the Author
Nick A. Flores enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at the age of 17. Within 18 months, he found himself right in the middle of the Korean War, a prisoner of the Chinese army. After enduring over 33 months in a Chinese POW camp, including 10 months of solitary confinement, he was repatriated on August 20, 1953. He now spends his time with family, friends and fishing. He is a true American with true American values.
