Their online service is trustworthy and delivery was prompt arriving two days before the stated due date. The medals are an exact copy of the originals which is held by another family member just crisper and cleaner looking - the engraving was perfect. Now i wish that i had them mounted as well -but i chose to do that myself. Thank you Kevin for all your assistance.My father served in the British Royal Navy along with his 3 brothers - while he was aware that his eldest son joined the Royal New Zealand Navy he was not aware that 4 grand children and 1 great grandson also joined the Royal New Zealand Navy. I wanted a set of my dad's war medals specifically for my son who was one of those grandchildren that joined the Navy. May the history continue.

A fine piece of research by the late Bill Fevyer and John Wilson team which produced a fascinating history of the politics as well as the naval operations in the Gulf area immediately prior to and after the Great War. The medal rolls are given by ships - no less than 28 involved - and each ship's specifications (type, displacement, dimensions and armament) are given. The selected despatches from the ships engaged and other correspondence are a high point in this excellent document illustrating the type of imperial policing carried out by the Royal Navy and Royal Indian Marine Service.
