Oht say, can you see, by the dawns early light. What so proudly we hailed at the twilights last gaming. Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro the perilous fight. Oer the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming? And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air. Gave proof thro the night that our flag was still there. Oh, say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave Oer the land of the free and the home of the brave? On the shore dimly seen thro the mists of the deep, Where the foes haughty host in dread silence reposes. What is that which the breeze, oer the towering steep, As it fittilly blows, half conceals, half discloses? Now it catches the gleam of the mornings first beam, In full glory reflected now shines on the stream; Us the star-si angled banner; oh, long may it wave Oer the land of the free and the home of the brave! And where is the band who so vaimtingly swore That the havoc of war and the battles confusion A home and a country should leave us no more? Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps pollution. No refuge could save the hireling and slave From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave: And the star-si angled banner in tritunph doth wave Oer the land of the free and the home of the brave. Oh, thus be it ever when freemen shall stand Between their loved home and wild wars desolation; Blest with vict ry and peace, may the heaven-rescued land Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation. Then conquer we must when our cause it is just. And this be our motto: In God is our Trust 1A nd the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave Oer the land of the free and the home of the brave.(Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and don't occur in the book.)About the Publisher Forgotten Books is a publisher of historical writings, such as: Philosophy, Classics, Science, Religion, History, Folklore and Mythology.Forgott
