When I was a kid, my Daddy had this book and I use to read it on and off all the time. It was extremely helpful when I had to study WWII in the Pacific....Unfortunately, my Daddy passed and between my mom and brother they wouldn't let me have this book which reminds me of him so much. Especially, since he was on the USS Dale (DD-354) at Pearl Harbor and went thru all the major battles in the Pacific. He loved Destroyers and died on one while doing undercover work on espionage on new destroyers being built.

Dad had one and now I do too. By M. R. Andrus My dad was a WWII Navy veteran who ran convoys in the Atlantic. In fact, his destroyer, the USS Badger, gets a mention for a successful attack on a German submarine. He had a copy that I loved to peruse as a kid. I just purchased a copy and now it sits proudly in my bookcase. Maybe my grandson will find it one day and appreciate what his great-grandfather did.

A detailed account of the operations of U.S. destroyers in the Second World War, prepared from personal narratives and official records.
